The winners

TV presenter Mark Durden-Smith hosted a great night at Cardiff City Hall as 14 awards were presented to project teams, organisations and well deserved individuals.

All of the CEW Award winners demonstrate that no matter the scale of the project or size of the business, some fantastic achievements can be secured through a commitment to collaborative procurement, investing in new systems and technology, innovation in people management and leadership, teamwork and sustainability.

We have a full run down of the winners at the CEW website www.cewales.org.uk/awards/ and you can pick out the winners here and overleaf.

The awards evening is always a great celebration for industry stakeholders. But it is also a chance to raise money for good causes and this year the CEW nominated charity was Wooden Spoon, and attendees at the dinner donated more than £3,000 – thanks to everyone for their generosity.

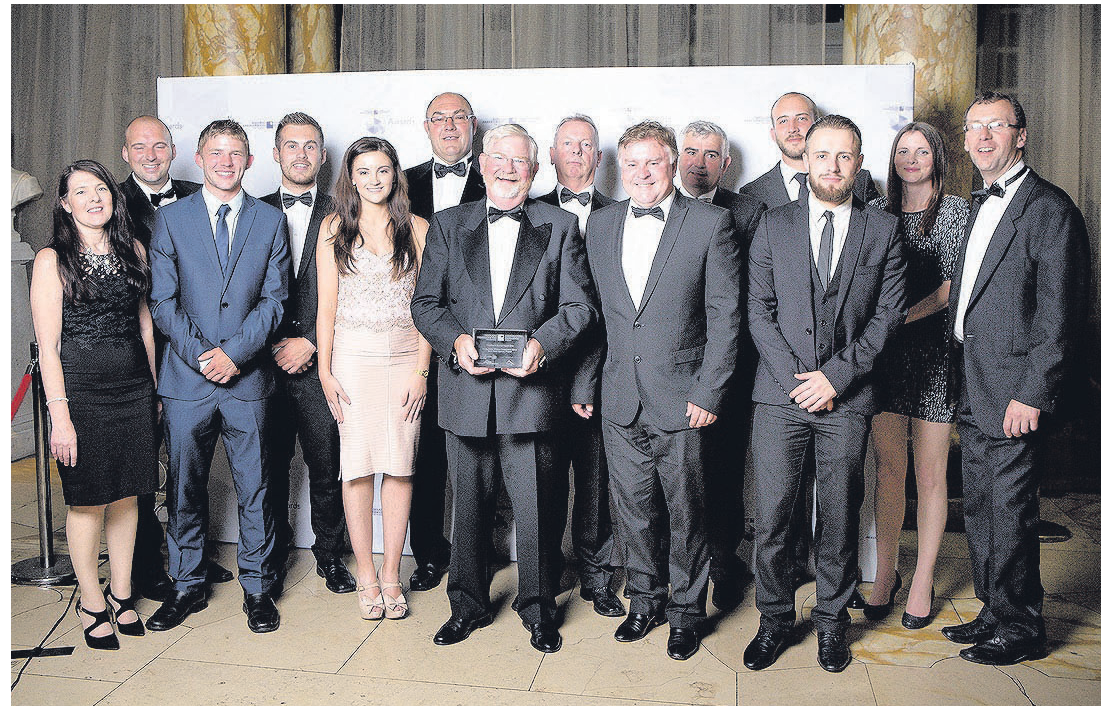

Thanks also to the CEW Awards sponsors – we could not run the event without their support and we had the generous backing of 20 organisations this year. Thank you.

■ Please contact us to find out the specific details of each winner and we will share their experiences and examples of best practice. After all, we have to work as a team.
